Since the inception of the Bulletin of Tibetology, more than a decade and a half year back, it has been carrying on its eventful existence as one of the leading journals on Tibetology and Buddhism. It covers a wide range of subjects dealing with Tibetology, Central Asian, and Indological Studies. Learned papers from the pens of distinguished writers on a variety of subjects have been featuring in the pages of the Journal.

Its popularity has gained prominence so much so that enquiries and demand for the Journal have been constantly pouring in. It has now a fair circulation in India and abroad.

The Journal which was formerly published thrice a year is now being published as a quarterly journal as per direction of His Excellency Shri Homi J. H. Taleyar Khan, the Governor of Sikkim, President, SRITOBS, who has been taking keen interest in the overall activities of the Institute.

This is the third issue of the Journal (July-September, 1982) which is now being presented to our members, subscribers and the like.

Two learned papers apart, it contains an account of the functions and activities of SRITOBS and a list of books and Tibetan xylographs published so far.

Dr. Anukul Chandra Banerjee

Buddhism moulded the thought, ideals and literature of the entire South-East and North-East portion of Asia from the 3rd Century B.C. to the 12th Century A.D. Tibet also came into contact with India through Buddhism whose contribution to the cultural advancement of Tibet is highly noteworthy.

The Tibetan dPal-bShag-ljon-’dzin of Sum-pa-mKhan-po-ye-shes ’dzin-lha-byor and Kun-dga-rDo-’Jes Deb-thar dmar-po give us a long list of Indian teachers who visited Tibet to propagate the sublime teachings of Buddha and participated in the Tibetan translation of the Buddhist works. Bu-ston also provides us with a list of teachers who visited Tibet. According to S.C. Das not less than eighty-nine teachers were invited to preach Buddhism in Tibet. They were further employed with the co-operation of the Tibetan teachers to translate the Sanskrit texts into Tibetan. They were indeed the spiritual teachers of the Tibetan Buddhist world but our knowledge of their life and career is very scanty. We know practically nothing about them beyond that they visited Tibet and took part in the translation works. We have positive evidence of only very few eminent teachers. The most eminent of them was Santaraksita. Here is a brief account of this teacher:

Santaraksita was born in the royal family of Zahoe. In Tibetan he is called Zhi-ba-tsho (lit. Santi-jiva). He is also known in Tibetan as Santaraksita and Akarā Bodhisattva. He was born during the reign of Gopala (660-705 A. D.), the founder of the famous Pala dynasty of Bengal and died at the time of Dharmapala who ascended the throne in 765 A. D. The dPags-bsam-i'kron-bZang records that he must have lived between King Gopala and King Dharmapala. He was a distinguished teacher of The Yogacara school of Buddhist thought and the Professor of Nalanda University, the "Oxford of Buddhist India".

King Khri-Srong-lDe-bTsan (745-797 A.D.) was a staunch admirer of Buddhism and directed all his efforts to further the consolidation of Buddhism in Tibet. With this purpose he invited the famous Indian teacher Santarakṣita to Tibet to spread the genuine teachings of Indian Buddhism among his people. Santarakṣita came to Tibet and was warmly received by the people there "with all the honours due to his high position as the spiritual teacher of the king of Magadha".

Arriving in Tibet Santarakṣita began to preach the fundamental teachings of Buddhism. He dwelt elaborately on the Buddhist code of morality consisting of the ten basic points of the virtuous life (Dasa Kusalani) and the chain of casual relation (Pratityasamutpada) explaining the misery of the mundane existence. S. C. Das writes that "Santaraksita introduced the observance of the ten virtues and Dharma which teaches the real state of the eighteen physical and corporeal regions with the eight prohibitions such as killing, the taking of what is not given, the commission of foul action, lying, drinking, dancing and singing and sitting on lofty seats".

Santarakita's eloquent sermons fell on deaf ears. His new code of monastic conduct came in sharp conflict with the age-old theory and practices of the Bon religion. This enraged the malignant deities and demons of Tibet. The consequence had been that Tibet was visited by all kinds of bad calamities like storms, and epidemics raged fiercely. "The great gods and demons of Tibet became wrathful. Lightening struck the palace of dMar-po-ni, and the royal palace of Phan-than was carried away by water. Harvest was damaged and a great epidemic took place. "When", says, S C. Das¹, "the mighty local gods and genii who delighted in sin found that men were proved to virtue they became enraged and one of the most wrathful among them named NyoChen-Than hurled a thunder-bolt on the Marpori hall. Another frightful demi-god named Yar-Lha-Shan-po cast down the place of Phan-Luhn of Yar-Lung. The fierce female spirits called "Sanma" spread plagues and murder all over the country." The adherents of Bon with the active support of the King's uncle invited the people by alleging that this calamity was due to the wrath of the gods at the introduction of this form of religion and also for the presence of this alien teacher in Tibet. Undoubtedly this accusation caused a serious set-back to the propagation of Buddhism.

At the advice of the King Santarakita had to flee Nepal for the time-being to evade the Bongo indignation. But subsequently the king invited him back to Tibet. Again the people began to offer opposition in his preachings of Buddhism. He then thought that a teacher possessed of supernatural powers and mystic charms would be able to move deeply the people of Tibet, steeped in sorcery, exorcism and the like. Accordingly, he advised the king to invite the celebrated Buddhist teacher Padmasambhava to come to Tibet and subdue the Tibetan devils and demi-gods.

On the advice of Acarya Santarakita king Khi-Tsong-Kha-bdan sent messengers to bring Padmasambhava to Tibet. He accepted the invitation of the king and escorted by messengers came to Tibet in 747 A.D. With his siddhi power he subdued all the local evil spirits of Tibet. This indeed contributed to the re-assertion of Buddhism in Tibet.

The king built Sam-Ye monastery, the first Buddhist monastery in Tibet and Acarya Santarakṣita was appointed the head of the monastery. Bus-ton observes that Padmasambhava "subdued all the Tibetan demons. Thereafter the teacher (Santarakṣita) was invited to Sam-Ye and established his residence there". With the construction of this monastery Buddhism made a steady progress in Tibet.

Santarakṣita delivered many religious discourses to the Tibetans and the king. The Blue-Annals records that "many Tibetans took up ordination and propagated the doctrine of the Vinaya". He conferred the monk-vows first on the "Seven men on Trial" (Gad-mi-mdzun). "The seven most distinguished and talented among the young Tibetans who were selected by king Khrisrong-Lde-bsan to be trained as monks by Acarya Santarakṣita, were thoroughly instructed in religion and sacred sciences. The three elder ones among them were: Manjuśri of DPal, Devendra of Tsans, Kumudika of Btan, while the three junior ones were: Nagendra of Khon, Venocerakṣita of Pager and acarya Rinchenchog of gRan and an intermediate one was Katana of gRan". Bus-ton also tells us that "12 monks of the Sarvatvadivadha were invited and it was put to the test, whether the Tibetans could become monks or not. For this purpose seven men were selected and ordained as monks".

After this a few Indian teachers like Vimalamitra, Buddhaguhya, Santigrha and Visuddhasinha were brought to Tibet. They translated

2. p. 105.
the Buddhist works into Tibetan in co-operation with those initiated before. Thus in the time of Santarakṣita there commenced the systematic translation of Buddhist works into Tibetan.

Santarakṣita was the author of several philosophical and logical works. In the Tibetan Tanjur a number of works are attributed to him among which the Vaiśāyayavittiprakāṣitaśrī and Tattvaśamtripha (Tattvaśamgrahakalika) deserve special mention.

The first work is a commentary on the Vaiśāyayasa of Dharmakīrti. The Sanskrit original of this work is lost but the Tibetan translation still exists. The second one contains memorial verses of a summary of the Tattvas. It criticises the moral and disciplinary part of the Buddhist and non-Buddhist systems.
His other works are preserved in Tibetan translations, the Sanskrit originals of which are lost.

He worked hard for thirteen years in Tibet but then died suddenly of an accident—"having been kicked by a horse, he went to his rest".

Lastly, it may be observed that Santarakṣita was a Buddhist teacher in the real sense of the term who worked assiduously to give a solid foundation for Buddhism in Tibet. His contribution to the cause of Buddhism is indeed unique and highly praiseworthy.
Did Atisa-Dipankara Srijñana
Visit Sikkim?
Bhabatosh Chakraborty

Today India's foreign policy is primarily based on immediate monetary and political gains. Probably for that reason, India mostly sends her traders, bureaucrats, politicians and musicians abroad with a view to establishing her favourable trade and political relations with other countries. This approach may earn dividend for her temporarily but this may not sustain in the long run. On the contrary, India, in the past, believed in maintaining cultural understandings with other countries on permanent footing. She, therefore, used to send her learned scholars, philosophers, saints and social reformers with missionary outlook abroad in order to propagate her thoughts and to maintain lasting cultural understandings with those countries. Although these dedicated Pandits had no such ambition like earning money, false reputation or to conquer other countries by force but to spread their knowledge, they used to accept such offers knowing fully well the rewards of such tours. They used to earn respects from the kings and the people alike in foreign lands for their exceptional qualities. They also upheld prestige of India so high in abroad that foreigners used to look forward to India for spiritual guidance.

Since the time of the first Tibetan polyglot, Thon-Mi-Sam-Bhota (632 A.D. onwards), a galaxy of saints and scholars from different universities of India visited Tibet for propagation of Buddhism. Atisa-Dipankara Srijñana (982-1054 A.D.) was one of them. His role as a scholar, teacher and a reformer who intensified the cultural ties with eastern Asia including Tibet can hardly be exaggerated. He travelled Burma to Tibet on foot and contacted people despite his old age and frail health. He preached Buddhism and popularised the cultural heritage of our country in these areas. He is, therefore, remembered in these countries even today—one thousand years later, with reverence. He was also regarded as the greatest scholar of India in his times. Hence, kings and people of Tibet made efforts and sacrifices to bring Atisa in their country in order to reform and re-invigorate the old religion of the land which had then become lax and corrupt. Although Atisa was warned by one of his well-wishers that his life would be shortened by twenty years if he dared go to Tibet, he decided to visit this land of snow at the age of 60 for he had a strong sense of social responsibility. He thought, "If I be of service to Tibet even if my life be shortened by going there I should not mind it". He believed that longevity should be subordinate to that of good of the world and his love for other things should prevail over his self-love.

Atisa established Kadampa (Phug—gdams) sect which literally means who knows how to translate every single word of Buddha into practice. (The religious discourses delivered by him at the request of his chief disciple, Domtongpa, are collectively known as Kadam Phacho consisting of 26 chapters). He wrote several valuable books including Boddhipathapradipa, Caityasangrhapradipa, Satavadyavatara, Madhavamopadesa, Sanggahagarbha, Hridayaniscita, Bodhisattvamanavali, Bodhisattvamadyamargavatara, Saranagatadesa, Mahayapanpathasahasranama, Mahayanapathasahasraangraha, Sutrasahasramorhabhupada, Dasakulasakamopadesa, Karnavihnga, Samadhisam-bhiraprati, Lokottarasaptakavidhi, Girikyaakarma, Citotpada, Karmamrivi sikkarma, Sikasa nucchaya, abhisamaya and Vimala nustalekhana.

He also trained scholars how to translate Sanskrit and Pali books verbatim into Tibetan and thus saved our sacred and rare books from extinction (most of our original Sanskrit books had been destroyed later by foreign invaders in India). Western historians and scholars were unwilling to accept India’s glorious past till recently in the pretext of non-availability of evidence. After discovery of these translated and some original Sanskrit books they were, however, obliged to accept India’s philosophy and civilisation seriously.

As Atisa-Dipankara was the spiritual guide of Bramston, the founder of the grand hierarchy of Tibet, he is still remembered in Sikkim with profound respect. His personal belongings have been jealously guarded by the Lamas in various monasteries since long. Talung Monastery is one of them which is situated at the periphery of Kanchenjunga National Park, the second highest National Park in the world, in a remote area in Dzongu, reserved for the local Lepchas. One has to take one full day jeep drive from Gangtok via Mangan and then he has to walk on foot to reach to this secluded three hundred years old monastery. The monastery is opened to devotees once in three years for only one day (sometime in January and February as per Tibetan lunar calendar). One Foot-print thanka (scroll) of Atisa has been preserved by the Lamas of the monastery secretly for centuries. The Sikkim Forest Minister, Mr. Atap Lepcha who visited the monastery during the festival in 1981 confirmed me about the existence of the thanka which he saw there during his visit.

The monastery was constructed by the first Lama of Sikkim (Loh-sang Chempo) who came to Sikkim from a monastery in eastern Tibet where Atisa stayed (Tholing monastery) for sometime. The Lama constructed the original monastery somewhere in West Sikkim (probably Dubli Rabdenchhi). He, however, shifted all valuable articles including the footprint of Atisa to this new place just before Gorkhas invaded Sikkim. The invaders captured the whole of West Sikkim and plundered houses of Sikkimese and also demolished the original monastery abandoned by the Lama. It is said that the Lama came to know about the Gorkha invasion well in time with his Tantric power and accordingly warned the first king of Sikkim (Thinsuk Namgyal) to take necessary actions. But the Chogyal did not believe the Lama’s forecast and did not take any precautionary measures to intercept the invaders. The Lama cursed the Chogyal and warned him that if any member of the Royal family would ever dare enter into the monastery he along with his family for generation would suffer his curses for not believing his forecast. Since then, as story goes, no member of the Royal family has ever visited the monastery.

The famous Rumtek monastery is also preserving the original signature of Atisha. The present Regent of the monastery, H.H. Samarapa Rinpoche has also confirmed this to me recently. It is reported that the rare and the sacred chanka was shown to the first Governor of Sikkim, Mr. B.B. Lal a few years back by no less a person than the late H.H. Gyalwa Karmapa XVI.

Many Sikkimese believe that some of the old monasteries still possess some personal belongings of Atisha and the Lamas guard them secretly for fear of theft. It is also commonly believed in this area that Atisha like Guru Padmasambhava visited Sikkim. An exhaustive survey is needed to reveal the truth.

Observance of Drukpa Tsadi
Drukpa Tashi (Drug-pa-Tashi) literally means observance of Fourth day of Tibetan sixth month. On this occasion Lord Buddha gave his first sermon at Sarnath on the Four Noble Truths (the Noble Truth of Suffering, the Noble Truth of the origin of Suffering, the Noble Truth of Ceasing of Suffering and the Noble path leading to the end of Suffering). To His five disciples at Sarnath ‘Mngadava (Dver Yark) after his enlightenment at Bodh-Gaya, under the Bodhi Tree.
On this auspicious day Buddhists celebrate this memorable occasion in all Sikkim monasteries and Lhakhangs, Lama and devout Buddhists offer butter lamps, incense and Khadis (scarves) to the deities therein.

Our Lama and other staff members of SRTOBs also observed this festival in a very simple and solemn manner in the Central Hall (1st floor) of the Institute by chanting special prayers, offering Khadis and burning butter lamps and incenses.

It is an honour to visit this vast ocean of knowledge.
How small one feels when one is surrounded by centuries of knowledge that lies on the shelf of the Institute-and how proud also of these ancestor of ours who in the wisdom decided on leaving this written knowledge for the prosperity.
Indeed it's an educative for one to have spent a little time here. One can only pray that such Institutes will grow over years and enlighten us with the wisdom of our forefathers.

MAHENDRA PSASAD
This Institute of Tibetology is wonderful place. They have got a precious collection on Buddha and Buddhism. I have definitely benefitted myself by visiting the Institute. I am proud there are places, this Institute being one of them in India where one gets lots of information about our distant past thousand of years ago. My visit here is really intellectually satisfying. Some of the people, who look after the Institute are really knowledgeable.

This is my first visit to this Museum. I wish I had come here decades ago ( I am now 77 ). I would then have been able to learn Tibetan and derived benefit of inspiration from a study of the ancient scriptures in store here. The loss is entirely mine. I hope, I shall have an opportunity in my rest life, which is no more than 15 years away according to my astrologer.

GIAN PRAKASH

I was happy to have gone round this Institute. It has a wealth of Buddhist literature. Tibet has preserved the literature on Buddhist culture, religion and its various beliefs. It is a paradise for philosophers and thinkers. Greater use of the facilities have to be made.
