Today, the world, our mother earth, is hanging on the threshold of a big threat for destruction. The devastating call of cold war, disease, famine, environmental degradation, social, economic and political upheavals have been pushing not only the human beings but all living beings to the horizons of complete annihilation and extinction. The survival of this universe and its inhabitants is endangered so much so that it would be impossible to think of its continuance for a longer period. No one knows where this process of existence on the edge of the sword would lead to. Would it lead to the ‘Tsongpa’? the ‘Nihilism’, commonly understood as the ‘Shunyata’. ‘Shunyata’ as we often hear from the learned one’s during our discourse with them, in the true sense, is the beginning of the realization of the truth beyond this physical existence. It is the most profound and fascinating enigma wrapped in a mystery, the rational realization of the life and living in a different mystic world.

The unique feature of the practice of Mahayana Buddhism is the systematic and logical development of the theory of ‘Shunyata and of ‘Karuna’ compassion. The universal affection of treating all living beings as one’s own kith and kin, in a way that it is evolved into a philosophy controlling the mind and action of the followers and practitioners. Thus the Mahayana Buddhist scholars, such as Guru Padmasambhava, Atisha and Vasubandhu, had through rigorous meditation and practice transformed into a method of metaphysics and direct experience in their life time. The realization of Shunyata and compassion is the visualization of the conscience that remains hidden within the individual. This leads to the revelation, propounding and emergence of the real and ultimate truth from within the four noble truths propounded by Buddha that would unveil the path for the attainment of nirvana-the supreme liberation of all sentient beings existing in this universe.

Padmasambhava is one of the staunch practitioner of Mahayana Buddhism, who emerged as the sole authority of this faith in the Northern India. Popularly known as ‘Guru Rimpochhe’ was famous Indian Buddhist scholar and saint, born in the upper valley, Udvalna Province (now in west province of Pakistan). He is known by various names, mainly eight names such as: 1) Padmasambhava 2) Nima Norjei 3) Dorje Dradok. 4) Singh Dradok, 5) Loden Chok launched, 6) Padma Gyalmo, 7) Shalaya Singh and 8) Padma Jungnyi. He is known to have introduced Buddhism in Tibet. Sikkim, Bhutan and the northern India during the eleventh century and is known as the Mahaguru, a great tantric saint of his time. Being a professor of Tantrism in Nalanda university, he had the distinction of having conquered the evil spirits and finally established the great seat of ‘Buddhism’ the first monastic university in Tibet which later on become the greatest centre of Mahayana Buddhism. This tradition of Mahayana Buddhism was spread throughout northern regions of India, Nepal and Bhutan.

Sikkim had the opportunity of being the meeting ground for different streams of religions of great significance. It was through this tiny Himalayan state that few of the learned scholars, including Padmasambhava kidnapped to travel upholding and preaching the sacred message of truth, peace, non-violence and sanity enshrined in the Buddha Dharma originated. from the land of the Aryans in India into Tibet, the land of Himalayan Plateau, and further to central Asia and China. The Mahayana Buddhism was introduced in Sikimes by Guru Rimpochhe who had sojourned all the sacred places ordaining and initiating his followers and blessed them with his mystic power. Bonism used to be in vogue prior to the arrival of Padmasambhava, as a few of the local people were conversant with this practice. The greatest contribution of Padmasambhava had been the suppression of this age old tradition of bonism and transformation of this prevailing practice with Buddhism. Guru Rimpochhe during sojourn happened to meet the Guardian deity, 'Khangchen Dzonga' who is worshipped in some of the monasteries, particularly, at Gangtok on the 15th day of the seventh month of Tibetan calendar in the form of offerings and dance called the warrior dance, 'Pang Tei' every year. At that moment there was one lama leader known by the name of 'Tik-kong Salong' who was made in charge of the Dharma centre in Sikimes. In this effort of establishing Mahayana centre in Sikimes. Guru Rimpochhe had to toil hard day and night to subjugate the evil spirits and thus change the outlook of the hill people particularly, the tribals in their religious beliefs and rituals. Eventually this is the reasons which indicate a conspicuous amalgamation of rites, traditions, belief and ritual with the practice of Buddhism in Sikimes and its surrounding areas. In fact, the revered saints and scholars from Tibet passed through our state to the prestigious centres of religion and learning in India in search of the ascetic faith and philosophy. Having thus been fully sanctified and blessed by the holy Guru and his followers, Sikimes has abundantly discovered the sacred places of pilgrimages. These undoubtedly bear the evidence of the holy sojourn and blessing of the great Guru Rimpochhe, the pioneering saint and teacher of the Mahayana faith the saviour of all sentient being after Buddha.

Consequently our land, Sikimes is honoured as the Bayo-Dremjong literally meaning the hidden valley of Rige, sanctified by 'Ugyen Rimpochhe' who was no other than Padmasambhava himself, the second Buddha after the Parinirvana of the great Buddha. The pride of Sikimes has been her god fearing, peace loving, religious, humble and gentle people. Regularly worshipping and propitiating Guru Rimpochhe all their life and aspiring for the external peace and happiness had been the endeavour of the Sikimese people.

Among the other contributions of Guru Rimpochhe are the four major caves namely 1) Chung Lhari Ningphuk, 2) Sharcheb Basyphuk, 3) Lho Khado Sangphuk and 4) Nuh Dechen Phuk which we located in the four directions bordering Sikimes. 'Dakkar' Tashiding is regarded as the centre of the pilgrimages and religious place of worship blessed and consecrated by Guru. The stupa at Tashiding is specially honoured as the 'Dongpa Rangdlo' meaning there by that one gets rid of his sins on seeing it and a large number of people from far and wide are found flocking there on the 15th Day of the first month, 'Tsawa Dangpo', 'Khechopari' lake occupies a special place in the history of pious pilgrimage of this part of the lake occupies a special place in the history of pious pilgrimage in this part of the world. Similarly in Changthang, a valley situated at a height of 160.1 metres in the upper reaches of north Sikimes, there stands a unique rock on a piece of flat land on which once Guru Rimpochhe happened to rest and ate his meal of rice. The peculiarity of this place is that rice grows and matures on this land. This wonder deed is the precious contribution of Guru Rimpochhe. Besides the other places of pilgrimage and worship frequented by people from far and wide, the discovery of the spots of hot spring along the Teesta and Ragaet valleys. Possessing medicinal and healing value are of special significance. The mission begun by Guru Rimpochhe.
was later pursued by other patrons. Prominent among them is the Lepcha Chief, “Thukong-Thog” and his fiancee “Nokong-Gnal” who were operating from Kabo. North Sikkim. Kabo was the centre of auspicious occasions leading to the visit of “Khe-Burma,” the Tibetan governor of Sikkim deputed at the moment to rule Sikkim in the beginning of the 17th century. This process of King making was finally accomplished with the meeting of the “Nal for Choc Zhi” the four noble heads at Yuksom in 1642 and enthronement of the first chogyal Phuntsog Namgyal at Norbu gang. “Gyalwa Lhabtsun Chhenpo” Kathok Rinchen Chhenpo and “Nadak Sonpa Chhenpo” were among the four noble heads present at the coronation and consecration of several Monasteries were commissioned as centres of learning of the Mahayana Buddhism. The most special feature of this state is that there is a monastery is every village, which forms the nucleus of the people’s learning and action. In recognition of his contribution Guru Rimpoche is honoured in the Monastery where a superheat room is provided to house his golden statue for worship and performance of religious ceremonies. This is called “Guru Lhakhang” and it constitutes a permanent element in the monastery plan. Besides, it is a common feature to find the “Lhakhang” the altar of every house of a Buddhist in Sikkim decorated with a statue of Guru Rimpoche evidently signifying that he had graced the land during his life time.

Now to conclude it may be appropriate by pay a little tribute to the fore runner, venerable Guru Rimpoche, by uttering the Mantra “Om Ah Hung” Vajra Guru, Padma siddhi Hung” and also the in-depth realization of the fact that it was through his tireless effort that our eyes had been opened. In true sense we are fortunate enough to have been acquainted with the theory and practice of the Mahayana Buddhism for the liberation of our souls for attainment of Nirvana.
